Status of Claims

1. Claims 1-4, 6-15, 17-26 and 28-30 have been examined.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 3, 6-12, 15, 17-23, 26, and 28-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 2, 3, 6-12, 14, 15, 17-23, 26, and 28-30 are directed to methods of transmitting data packets using a method other than the algorithm prescribed in claim 1 which teaches giving routing priority to packets that take less time to process. Claim 2, for example, recites processing packets according to security parameters, while claims 3 and 12 recite executing a priority according to "first-in-first-out" and "round-robin" rules, respectively. Therefore, Applicant's method is unclear to one of ordinary skill (In re Zletz, 13 USPQ2d 1320 (Fed. Cir. 1989)).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1-4, 6-15, 17-26 and 28-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Cidon et al., U.S. Patent No. 5,343,473 in view of Taniguchi, U.S. Patent No. 6,222,841.

As per claims 1-4, 6-15, 17-26 and 28-30, Cidon et al. teach receiving packets of at least two types, determining which type of packet takes more time to process, identifying a packet of lower priority (e.g. a first type) that takes more time to process, identifying a packet of a higher priority (e.g. second type) that takes of the higher priority (e.g. less time to process) and transmitting packets of the lower priority (e.g. second type) before packets of the first type (column 1, lines 50-53; column 8, lines 13-16). Cidon et al. also teach FIFO (column 1, lines 61-65), monitoring a queue in order to fetch one type of packet over another (column 1, lines 50-53; column 8, lines 13-16). Regarding linking packets (e.g. claim 7) it is inherent to packet switching that data to be transmitted from a sending node over a network is broken up into packets, the packets are routed along different paths on the network, and reassembled at receiving node. In order to be reassembled, the packets are necessarily linked. Cidon et al. do not explicitly recite how priority is assigned. Taniguchi teaches a method for transmitting data packets across a network (abstract) based on a priority (figure 14; column/line 16/19-17/17; column/line 22/18-23/6) such as processing time (e.g. packet size, number of transmitted bytes) (column/line 18/62-19/8) or other user defined parameter (column 4, lines 3-10; column 16, lines 18-33; column 18, lines 14-32). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill to combine the teachings of Cidon et al. and Taniguchi in order more effectively distribute audio and video data over a packet switching network ('841, column 7, lines 5-15).
